ANNEX 3

DISCLOSURE RAPID SARS-COV-2 ANTIGEN TEST WITH RHINOPHARYNGAL SWAB AND INFORMED CONSENT FORM

The collection with nasopharyngeal swab is a procedure that consists in the removal of the superficial cells of the mucous membrane of the nasopharynx, using a small stick of synthetic material capable of retaining a lot of organic material. The sampling is performed in a few seconds and has a minimal invasiveness, originating, at most, an imperceptible nuisance at the point of contact. The swab undergoes the viral RNA extraction procedure. The molecular swab test is a diagnostic test to detect the presence of the virus in a precise moment, very useful for example to identify a contagious subject and immediately subject it to isolation to prevent the spread of the virus. The presence of the virus in the respiratory mucous membranes indicates replicative activity, therefore the individual is highly contagious and will have to be subjected to home quarantine by informing their general practitioner. A test on the patient's negative swab on the date of execution does not mean that the patient himself, especially if particularly exposed to the risk of infection, cannot be infected the next day.
